DESCRIPTION

SAVARONA, a high-performance world cruiser, was meticulously designed by naval architect Philippe Cabon and Frank Darnet for the interior, and custom-built in aluminium by the renowned French yard Construction Navale Bordeaux. Since her initial launch, SAVARONA has undergone multiple refits to maintain her top-notch condition. The first refit took place in 2006, followed by another in 2010, and a major refit in 2015 at the Gino Yard in Marmaris, Turkey, where she underwent a comprehensive hull survey and inspection by Patton Marine, a globally recognized marine survey company.

Recently, SAVARONA has completed an extensive refit under the supervision of her meticulous owner, who is known for his high standards of perfectionism. The owner's project manager, who is also a marine surveyor, oversaw the entire project. The result is a breathtaking yacht that is in better-than-new condition, with a staggering investment of $1.5 million. The refit included a complete repaint of the mast, boom, hull, and superstructure, as well as the installation of new 16mm Burma teak decks and caprail, with additional teak added to the coachroof well. The deck hardware has been upgraded to new black anodized Lewmar components, and the interior has been varnished and refurbished with top-quality fabrics. However, the most significant improvements are not visible to the eye, as virtually every system on board has been serviced, replaced, or modified to ensure uninterrupted charter activity for her new owner, who has the option to use her as a private yacht or continue with her charter operation, complete with a dedicated website.

In 2021, SAVARONA has recently undergone her third major refit in preparation for a long-term program and her trade registration (RIF). This refit included the replacement of the standing rigging, engine, and boom, as well as the complete overhaul of many systems to enhance comfort and reliability.
